Engaging Lessons

Kindergarten is all about the apples this week! Classes are celebrating Johnny Appleseed thru songs, tradebooks, math, language arts, and writing activities. One of our favorites is always the taste testing! Students enjoyed a variety of apple slices, apple butter, applesauce, and apple cake!

The first day of fall was exciting as first graders made edible acorns from doughnut holes. They added icing, sprinkles, and a pretzel. They then wrote directions by sequencing the steps they had followed. It was a yummy way to write!

First grade is cooling off now that Fall is here. They are talking about what makes the seasons and using different art mediums to make trees for each season.

Below are first graders creating their Seasons masterpieces!

Second graders love to read. Neela Megow enjoyed a book about about her celebrity dress up character from the Book Fairy!

Second graders made hats where they wrote the author's purpose for the story of Johnny Appleseed and afterwards enjoyed Apple Dump Cake with ice cream- YUM!

Fourth graders have enjoyed their study of the lost colony of Roanoke: A Cold Case Investigation.

Roanoke Mystery

By Tyler Burnam

We are learning about the mystery of Roanoke, and we are trying to solve the mystery. We are discussing theories about what could have happened to the people that came from England to Roanoke. For example, one of the theories said that the Spanish could have killed them. But it still remains a mystery.

Brandon Madon earns the privilege to hold the DARE mascot during DARE class this week. DARE is a program 5th graders have the opportunity to participate in which guides students to help in making wise decisions involving avoiding drugs and violence in society.

As an extension of the 5th grader's unit on cells, the Discovery students completed a project called "CSI: Cell Court." Here's the case! There was an epidemic of cell death. The police rounded up and questioned several suspects in order to determine the cause of death in the cell. The Students stepped into the role of defense lawyer, prosecutor, defense witness, or paralegal (visual aids) accusing or defending an organelle. Combining creative thinking skills with scientific knowledge, the students presented convincing arguments. Court was held on last week during class with the Honorable Mrs. Denly serving as judge.

Milk Day is Sept. 27!!

Students are creating Super Hero Cow posters. Students will turn in these FANTASTIC creations by Wednesday Sept. 27th. Our panel of judges will pick one winner from each grade group and announce those winners on Thursday Sept. 28th. The winners' SPECTACULAR art will be displayed in the lunch room! The winners will also be invited to a party given by the lunchroom ladies!
